Changing Your Password

To change your greenplanet password, either initially or later on, type `passwd` on a login node. This is a wrapper script which will in turn ssh to to the headnode and run the passwd command there, so you will have to enter your old password multiple times. If you get any errors when trying to set a password, it usually means you entered your old password incorrectly, or the new password is not sufficiently complicated (make it longer, and use more numbers and special symbols in this case).
