

Changing Your Password

To change your greenplanet password, either initially or later on, type `passwd` on a login node. This is a wrapper script which will in turn ssh to the headnode and run the `passwd` command there, so you will have to enter your old password multiple times. If you get any errors when trying to set a password, it usually means you entered your old password incorrectly, or the new password is not sufficiently complicated (make it longer, and use more numbers and special symbols in this case).
